

Empowering the San Diego business community to collaborate, face-to-face, about social impact initiatives that make San Diego a better place to live, work, and play.

A day of collaboration.

Welcome to a business conference that will assemble hundreds of leaders from for-profit, non-profit, education, and government who believe that business can be a force of social good.

This extraordinary gathering is an opportunity for discussion, workshops, collaboration, and most importantly, connections.

The start of something bigger.

Over the past few decades we have left the issues of improving our communities mostly up to the government and the non-profit sector. The traditional business role has typically been relegated to a funder or a nonprofit board member.

That is no longer good enough.

It is time for the San Diego business community to become more active in local social impact initiatives.

At the conference, you will be introduced to other impact-driven San Diego business and community leaders.

Together, we'll facilitate conversations and build connections that can lead to progress on initiatives we all care about.
