ADAPTING TO EIGHT TRENDS IN PHILANTHROPIC ADVISING

We're living in an unprecedented period of intergenerational wealth transfer and new wealth creation. Inheritors and wealth creators are more diverse and interested in achieving social impact during their lives. They're ready to use a broader mix of tools and strategies to tackle complex social, economic, political, and environmental issues worldwide. These are trends we at Daylight Advisors have seen in our research on US philanthropy advising.

Do these trends also hold true in Southeast Asia, where wealth is growing rapidly? We have invited Singapore-based Real Impact Advisors to help us explore the trends in philanthropy in Southeast Asia during this transformative era. Join us to learn how to adapt to eight trends in philanthropic advising. The insights are drawn from conversations with hundreds of professionals ranging from wealth advisors to fundraisers, and from family office staff to donor-advised fund leaders.
